And Freight is Moving at Big Springs.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL. GALVESTON, Tex., March 11.—A special to the News from Dallas says United States Marshal Jackman telegraphs to Receiver Brown from Big Springs that traffic is open and freight trains are moving.

GRIEVANCES OF THE KNIGHTS.

St. Louis, March 11.—Martin Irons, chairman of the executive committee of the board of district assembly No. 101, Knights of Labor, has prepared a statement of the grievances and demands of the striking employees of the Gould system, and has sent it to Col. Hoxie, first vice president and general manager of the Missouri Pacific railroad. Mr. Irons denounces the statement made in Col. Hoxie's circular, issued a few days ago, as wholly false. The statement proceeds to say that it is the belief of every Knight of Labor that the Gould system have assuredly inaugurated a systematic method of breaking up their organization, and to check the effect of this action the strike was commenced. He proposes that a conference be arranged between the management of the Gould southwest companies and the district executive board of assembly No. 101, Knights of Labor, and then sets out a number of propositions as to wages, etc., to be agreed to. It also provides that there shall be no discharge of any Knight of Labor without a written statement of the cause of the complaint and a trial before three disinterested parties, one chosen by each side and a third by the two, the accused to remain at work during the investigation.

St. Louis, March 11.—The trades assembly have adopted resolutions recognizing the railroad strike as a struggle for the rights of workmen to organize, that the position taken by the railroad managers is inimical to the rights of workmen and public good and should be denounced.

St. Louis, March 11.—A freight train was quietly made up in this city this morning and started in the direction of Carondelet on the Iron Mountain road with an engine under a full head of steam and passed through that city at express train speed. When the train reached Desoto, Mo., a delegation of Knights of Labor boarded and side tracked the train and "killed" the engine.

An Atchison, Kansas, train went out on the Central branch last evening. Another will go out to-day. No resistance is being made.

POWDERLY ON STRIKES.

Mr. Powderly, grand master workman of the Knights of Labor, in an interview stated a number of facts that every working man should consider. He considered it very unwise to inaugurate so many strikes, "nine out of ten of them from trivial cause." That the workmen should be careful that they do not "sap and undermine their strength by extreme demands." That now that they had the power that comes from organization, "they must use that power wisely and moderately, and be careful not to change position with the employer and refuse to treat with him except at the point of the pistol, or the strike, which is about the same thing."

TRAINS STOPPED.

LITTLE ROCK, March 11.—The foreman of the Iron Mountain railroad company succeeded in sending out one freight train with perishable local freight, south bound. The strikers took possession of the engine, ran it into a side track three miles south and "killed" it. Another engine was found, which took the train out, protected by Sheriff Worthen and a posse. No personal violence was offered.

WAGES ADVANCED.

PITTSBURGH, March 11.—The 250 employees of McIntosh, Hemphill & Co., the extensive foundry men, have been surprised by the notice of an advance in wages of from five to fifteen per cent., to take effect April 5th.

THE STUDEBAKER STRIKE.

The trouble at the Studebaker wagon works, at South Bend continues, although there is now some talk of the possibility of a settlement soon.

STRIKE AT TORONTO.

The Toronto Street Railway company locked out three hundred conductors and drivers, causing nearly a total cessation of traffic.

Prince Alexander Promoted.

By Cable to THE SENTINEL. CONSTANTINOPLE, March 11.—The conference of the representatives of powers, who met to-day to consider the Bulgarian treaty, which, among other things, creates Prince Alexander, of Bulgaria, ruler of Eastern Roumelia, have accepted the treaty in its entirety.

On a Yachting Trip.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL. KEY WEST, Fla., March 11.—Mr. Jay Gould and family arrived here yesterday on the yacht Atalanta.

QUEER CHARACTERS

And Frauds Who Infest the Streets of New York.

The Weeper of the Public Stairways--The Witch of the Doorstep That Work on the Public.

(Special Correspondence.)

NEW YORK, March 8.—Queer creatures in New York. Cranks, frauds and nondescripts, of patterns so original and remarkable that they become a study, are to be seen on the highways, as well as in the byways. Like all terrestrial things, they are influenced by the law of progress. They keep up with the times. Their line of activity is bawling out the sympathetic and benevolent, and new roles are in demand when the old ones no longer serve. The successful ones are geniuses in their way, and know something about the art of making up, as well as the art of acting. Not infrequently there is histrionic talent found here on street corners, at basement doors and on stairways, which would make itself renowned if it had a chance beyond the footlights. But an impostor in the drama and an impostor in real life occupy different places in the estimation of the public. A beggar is pleasing and picturesque and pleasing in a picture, but abhorrent on the street. Rags are artistic in art and loathsome in fact.

One of the original frauds of this city is an old woman who cries on the stairs. This is her regular occupation. That it is profitable is evident, else she would give it up. For two years, at least, she has pursued this peculiar industry, and hasn't exhausted her tears yet. Copious but silent weeping is her specialty, and she goes at it with business-like energy and promptitude. Her outfit is a stock of frayed and rusty garments, a threadbare hood, worn without intermission the year through, and a big wooden pail. Just what the pail's uses are nobody can say, but it is supposed to be a reservoir for the old woman's tears.

She solicits no assistance, not by words. She stands stock still in one spot two, three and sometimes four hours, weeping industriously every minute of the time. Men and women may come and go, but she stands still and weeps and weeps. One thinks of the lachrymal lines in the old, old ballad of "Lord Lovell."

"And the tears came trickling down, down, down, And the tears came trickling down."

They are real, sure-enough tears, or they must do effective financial work, or they wouldn't flow on forever; yet I never saw any human being give her a penny, and I have passed her on different stairways fifty times or more. I have known of sympathizing persons speaking to her—in fact, I have spoken to her myself. She never makes any reply. Fresh tears, and plenty of them, are the only response. I am not equal to interpreting this character. I have never been able to see where the pecuniary results come in, but of course there are results, or the stairway weeper wouldn't exist. The idea she aims to give out is that her griefs are too overwhelming to put into words. She is rooted to the spot with the extravagant weight of her woe.

The people of New York see such sights often, yet still their hearts never quite soften. Their purses open readily. It is easier to drop a small coin into the weeper's wooden pail than to investigate her case; so she weeps on. Next year, perhaps, she will have some other plan for operating on the public's sympathy.

The extremely pale thin man who meekly haunts an occasional pedestrian, usually a woman, and presents a letter, to a physician, whose name and number can't be found, is a most insidious fraud. His paleness and emaciation constitute the most valuable part of his stock in trade. He makes himself pale by ingenious artifice, and knows how to keep fresh off his bones and be happy, and never work. Like the weeper of the public stairways he asks nothing in plain words. He looks his request. He answers questions in unknown languages, and affects ignorance of everything but his own woe.

Without saying anything he leads his victim to believe that he has just been discharged from a hospital, and that the doctor he seeks would befriend him if he could only be found. He looks so pale and weak, and yet seems to be struggling so heroically against his afflictions that the tender-hearted usually give him something, anything from a nickel to a half dollar. He is profoundly grateful. His eyes will glisten (this, too, is a trick of the trade with him) but he doesn't gush in words. He makes his benefactor feel that he has saved him from absolute despair. The next day, or the same day, if he gets a chance, he will slip into said benefactor's house, by means of a smart latch key, and lug off every salable article he can get his hands on.

The pale man's clothes are very much worn, but are brushed like a hard-working clergyman's everyday outfit. His linen is old, but immaculate, and the skin of his face and hands indicate careful and frequent bathing. These details are also mere matters of business. His role is that of the courageous, broken-down gentleman, too proud to beg, but anxious to work, if his strength will permit. Bitter cold days suit him best. He looks thinner, bluer, hungrier, then by way of contrast with the fur-clad men he meets. And women feel so sorry for him. They are his invariable victims. Men are not to his taste. He can't work upon them so effectively. His threadbare gentility and white face melt women's hearts. They give pitiful accounts of him when they get home, and wonder why such worthy souls are so unfairly dealt by.

This pale, meek man, with the tear in his eye, worked upon the sympathies of a woman one day to the extent of a quarter, then followed her home at an unseen distance, slipped into the house and stole her best silk gown. He goes into doctors' offices when their owners are out, and waits for their return, watches his chances and glides out with the clock or some other pawnable article under his arm. This delicate gentleman's photograph is to be seen in the rogues' gallery at police headquarters. He knows the island well, but fails to find any attractions in the path of honesty.

Another and more dangerous species of fraud is the wicked old woman who stands in the open door of a respectable looking house and calls anxiously to young women who pass by to come to her. She is generally a vicious looking old creature of a gypsy cast of countenance, dressed like a respectable servant, her head arrayed in a bright bandanna. "Come up here, Miss," she calls out anxiously, as though in sudden distress; "please step up here just a minute. I need help; quick! hurry!" The natural impulse of the incautious would be to respond to such a call instantly without stopping to consider the possible consequences. A mandatory call always turns the mind of the one it is addressed to in the direction of obedience. But was it she who chose the old woman of the doorway? Several lions may lurk behind that old woman's red-covered head. She secures victims for many purposes. When the young woman gets close to her she whisks her inside the door, and then, after searing her to the verge of death, only lets her out after she has surrendered all the money she has on her person, or she may not let her out at all. She may have unspeakable experiences in store for her. This witch of the doorway is a creature to keep away from. On the stage she would be considered an exaggeration. Her hooked nose, small, wicked, black eyes, red headgear and bony fingers would make a picture equal to any that ever emanated from the brain of the most sensational novelist. Yet she is a diabolical fact, a vicious, dangerous reality, an adjunct of certain brown-stone fronts whose interiors know things such as should be unknown to all. GERTRUDE GARRISON.

A LEVEL-HEADED NEWSDEALER.

Newsdealers are as a class popularly supposed to know a good thing when they see it, and are ever on the lookout for that which will interest and please the public. In a humble way Edison was once a newsdealer, having sold papers on railroads. Among newsdealers who have a keen eye to business and to everything that can be of benefit is Mr. G. W. Dove, of Vincennes, Ind., whose place of business is at No. 114 second street. Mr. Dove was recently afflicted with rheumatism, but quickly cured himself by using Athlaphoros. This is what he says about it:

"Athlaphoros is a good medicine and it did me all that I could ask. At the time when I began using it I was sadly afflicted with rheumatism. I was in a helpless state and suffered untold pain, not being able to get out of bed or to be moved without enduring the greatest agony. I had read some time before of the wonderful cures of people effected by Athlaphoros, and at the time tried to buy it at the drug stores, but could not find any. As I was determined to try it I sent to the company for some."

"Did it act quickly upon you?"
"I felt the effects almost immediately. After I had taken a few doses the pain subsided. The medicine seemed to go directly where the pain was."

"Have you had any return of the pain?"
"I have not suffered any to speak of since. I used only one bottle, and consider it the best medicine for rheumatism that I know of. I recommended it to a gentleman in St. Louis who had his mother use some and was very much pleased with the result. I have continued to use it on ferent persons, and in every instance where it was used it gave entire satisfaction."

J. A. Wilson, the well-known photographer, 6 and 8 Main St., New Albany, tells an equally interesting story of how Athlaphoros cured him of rheumatism:

"I only used one bottle," he says. "The rheumatism was in my arms and I had sharp, shooting pains. I was suffering and complaining a great deal, when a friend coming into my gallery one morning asked me what the trouble was. I said it was rheumatism. Said my friend: 'I was reading of a medicine that is for the cure of rheumatism and neuralgia. It struck me forcibly, as it did not claim to cure every complaint that flesh is heir to.' When I asked him what it was he said the name was Athlaphoros. I bought a bottle on the strength of what he said. That was all I needed. I used the one bottle over six months ago and have not had a pain or an ache from rheumatism since."

From Greencastle, Ind., D. L. Southard has this to say of what Athlaphoros did for him:

"When Bishop Bowman brought me a bottle of Athlaphoros I was suffering greatly from rheumatism and could scarcely move. I began taking the medicine on Thursday morning. At 9 P. M. I went to sleep and slept until 6 o'clock Friday morning, when I got up and said to my wife: 'Dear, look here, I am well. At the first I was not better than I expected using the medicine and the rheumatism came back. The second attack was not stopped so easily, but still in double the time the Athlaphoros removed the pain. The medicine had no unpleasant effect, but seemed to quiet the nerves and give relief.'"

If you cannot get Athlaphoros of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed. ATHLAPHOROS CO., 112 West Street, New York.

WHEN old "Dad" Freeman was buried in Windsor, Canada, a few days ago, it was believed that the oldest man in the world had been laid to rest. "Dad" was 122 years old, as conclusively proved before his death, and left 138 descendants. Since Freeman was buried some relic-hunters have brought forward a man whose authentic record fixes his age at the remarkable figure of 127 years.

It has recently been discovered that Lake Dias, near DeLeon Springs, Volusia County, Florida, is fed by an enormous spring, which boils up about 200 yards off the south shore of the lake. When the surface is perfectly still the boiling can be seen over an area of about five acres. It is proposed to anchor a buoy over the center of the spring, since the best of cool water can be obtained there at any time.

A GENTLEMAN who knew Col. Thomas A. Scott intimately tells the Philadelphia Evening News "that one of Mr. Scott's distinguished traits was his ability to pick up promising young men and develop them into able lieutenants. In this way he picked up Frank Thompson, who is now first Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and Charles E. Pugh, its General Manager. Thompson was a gentleman's son who was in the company's shops at Altoona learning to be a machinist and a railroad. He has made a fine one. Mr. Pugh was a conductor on the road."

The annual meeting of the Royal Zoological Society in Dublin disclosed some interesting facts. The cash receipts from visitors were about $6,000. Twelve lion cubs had been reared and six sold for $500 in cash and the same value in other animals. The sale of lion cubs since the opening of the garden has amounted to about $14,000. The President, Dr. Haughton, claimed that the garden stood first in the world as a lion-breeding establishment. Among the dogs is a Tibetan mastiff whose peculiarities and habits identify the breed with the griffins described by early Greek visitors to the East.

A SPEAKER at the Woman Suffrage Convention in Washington declared that she had often wished she were a man, but only for the reason that she could then vote. The female suffragists' idea of the privileges and blessings enjoyed by the masculine portion of humanity differs somewhat from that held by their weaker-minded sisters. One of the latter was lately heard to express a wish that she had been born a man so that she might have had pockets in her clothes. The probabilities are that the average man does not regard either the ballot or the pocket as the greatest advantage in life.

MRS. THURMAN always accompanies her distinguished husband when traveling. They are in Washington now. The ex-Senator, says a dispatch, "has but little left of the elasticity of step that he possessed when he was in the Senate. He stoops somewhat more, too, and, while his step seems a little shorter than of old, the little nod of his head at each step is more marked. His rather unkempt hair and billy-goat beard are no grayer than when he looked last upon the Senate chamber. He still carries his red bandana handkerchief, and in its use he is still capable of producing music which makes up in energy all it may lack in harmony."

HITHERTO Japanese ladies have not countenanced tight lacing, as well-rounded figures were in Japan more admired than sylph-like waists. But it is said that a change is coming; that Japanese ladies will now follow their civilized sisters, and the craze for Parisian toilets and hour-glass figures, like those of European females, has set in. The husbands are said not to like it, but to be even more helpless than husbands generally are under the circumstances. For the rage for Japanese clothing in Paris is as great as the craze for Parisian costumes in Japan, and so the wily Jap ladies are bartering their native gowns for those of foreign lands.

STAGING IN THE FOOT HILLS.

The name of Deadwood, a city that is still in the "wild West" in spite of the rapid improvements thirty years have seen west of the Mississippi, is familiar to many people who know nothing whatever of it except that it lies somewhere out in the mining region.

Traveling from the East, it can be reached within one hundred miles by rail; the remainder of the distance must be taken by stage. The railroad ends at Buffalo Gap. Six horses, carrying a stage coach with three seats in it, await the Deadwood traveler. If there are more than six passengers and any of them are inclined to obesity, there is apt to be a lack of comfort.

If it is during the spring or autumn rains, there is much jolting and careful driving, and perhaps some seasickness among the passengers.

In the bitter winter weather, warm wraps, furs, and heated stonepans are necessary. Perhaps the ride is most delightful in the autumn, when there is a golden morn, and lazy winds and a cloud of purple haze in the west.

The one hundred miles are traveled in thirty-six hours or thereabout. Every ten miles the horses are changed, and every twenty miles the drivers change.

The stations are simply large barns where the horses are kept. These are as well trained, and enter into their task with as much spirit and seeming delight as the horses of the fire departments in cities. They grow to be familiar with every step of the journey and know their driver as children know a parent. The coach stops for meals at regular stations, three times a day. Quite an excited interest is visible at all the towns passed through. The coming of the stage, with its galloping horses, its air of mystery and restlessness and the charm of knowing it has come from the outside world, which, like Rasselas in his valley, every one envies to be in occasionally, is quite an event in the lives of the village people. Caesar, in his commentaries, speaks of the inhabitants of inner Gaul gathering around the merchants when they came to trade, and asking questions innumerable. The merchants were often tempted to exaggerate and sometimes to invent stories of the outside world, which temptation they often yielded to, and were eagerly believed by the Gauls. So the stage coach driver, after answering many questions to suit himself, amid the admiring gaze of the populace, with a flourish of his whip, a word to his horses, is gone. Gone for a wild ride over dangerous roads, now winding along a mountain path, now between rocks, now along a river bank, and again out into the level mesa-like stretch, that seems to reach in infinite distances on every hand. The drivers find their work to possess a strange fascination. No stage driver ever feels content to go back to the tame life of a town dweller. Each one of them has his reputation and is known by his peculiar characteristics all along the entire route. In the lower part of the stage, under the seats, is a place for baggage, much like the hold in a ship. The trip is worth taking, especially in spring or autumn, when the driver is glad to give a share of his seat for at least a few hours each day or night.

Deadwood is a very pretty town hemmed in by mountains. It is in the extreme western part of Dakota, not far from its boundary line. It is only 250 miles from Yellowstone Park, and is surrounded by mountains on every hand. Some valuable gold and silver mines are located near the town.—Detroit Free Press.

ABOUT SOROSIS.

The Famous Woman's Club Elects a New President.

[Special Correspondence.]
New York, March 8.—Sorosis had an election last week, and a warm time they had of it. Sorosis, as everybody knows, is the oldest woman's club in the country. Its object is culture, and to give the intellectual women of the city an opportunity to become acquainted with each other. It is generally believed that women are able disorganizers; that they disintegrate everything they take hold of. Sorosis, however, refutes that. It has held together and prospered through seven years.

Mrs. Croly (Jenny June) has been its president for the last ten years. There is an end to everything, even to filling an office in which you have done your duty, and more than your duty, without money and without price. A faction, at first no larger than a woman's hand, arose. Then it became formidable, and Jenny June was voted down. The lady who takes her place is Mrs. M. Louise Thomas, a most worthy person, and not to blame for the turn affairs have taken. Her friends did the work, and they did it effectually. They canvassed, electioneered and stumped around quite like men in their zeal to elect their chosen candidate. Mrs. Croly's friends labored quite as zealously, but did not understand the arts of war as well as their enemies.

There is feeling, and some little fuss, among the Sorosian fraternity just now, for how can such things be said to be better than all hung on a question of equal suffrage, too, which is a straw showing the direction the wind is taking. Originally woman suffrage was a certain dragon to Sorosis. It dared not be mentioned, to say nothing of being discussed. Certain members, who wanted to be both fashionable and intellectual, looked upon woman suffrage as a fearful thing, the very sound of which would do them infinite damage. Suffrage and caste they considered mortal enemies. Now that the once dreaded dragon has become a very respectable pet in intellectual fashionable circles, the number of its advocates in Sorosis has increased, and they want to discuss it. The new president intends to open the way to making it a standard topic. Under Mrs. Croly's ruling it was a forbidden topic. Not that she is narrow on that subject, but she understands the feminine mind. She knows that a number of women—even cultivated women—cannot exchange views on such an exciting topic without stirring up gall. She wisely ruled it out.

It may be that the club has progressed far enough in toleration and advanced thought to discuss this explosive question without shattering itself into infuriated fragments. I hope so. Emerson has said that in a really civilized age, when people become as well poised and sound intellectually as they should be, all things can be discussed.

Mrs. Thomas, the new president, is the widow of a Unitarian clergyman, and is herself a very successful farmer, at Fordham, N. Y. Mrs. Croly goes out of the office she has filled with honor so long, regretted by a large number of the membership of the famous club. Sorosis is seventeen years old. Perhaps by the time it is twenty-one it may be old enough to vote on bigger questions.

It cures Croup in its most aggravated form, when administered promptly and according to directions. ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Jan. 19-codw3m

REPORT OF CITY ENGINEER.

Pursuant to an order made by your honorable body, upon a resolution offered by Councilman Michael, that the city civil engineer be instructed to examine into the best mode of abating a nuisance caused by the discharge from the Baker street sewer into an open ditch at the south line of the right of way of the P. & W. and C. railway and just west of Fairfield avenue, will report as follows, to-wit: That after a careful examination of the premises, together with a correct survey, I find that the nuisance can be abated by extending the Ewing street sewer south through the "Tuber" hole far as Baker street, a distance of 30 feet, then connecting with the Baker street sewer. The fall, 1 1/2 feet, is sufficient to warrant the change, and by making a cut off commencing at the north line of the right of way of the P. & W. and C. railway and running north along the east side of Fairfield avenue to a point where the same will intersect with the Baker street sewer on a right line, at a distance not to exceed fifty feet. By this change the discharge from the Hoagland avenue sewer will be conducted through the Baker street sewer to the proposed connection with the Ewing street sewer, and as the fall in the Hoagland avenue sewer is very little, the change can be made without any further expense than that of constructing a dam in the Baker street sewer immediately be its intersection with the Hoagland avenue sewer. By this arrangement all the filthy discharge from both sewers will be conducted to the St. Mary's river by the Ewing and Harrison street sewer, which have ample capacity to carry off all the drainage that may be turned into them without any further expense, and with the waste-way at the west end of the Baker street sewer we have ample provision for any emergency in case of flood.

REPORT OF STREET COMMISSIONER.

The wooden box sewer on Barthold street from the north line of High street to the Jackson and Saginaw railroads, a distance of 74 feet, is all decayed and broken down in many places. Said sewer is the only outlet to convey the surface water from High street, and in the event that the sewer is to be maintained on said street I would recommend that an eighteen or twenty inch crock pipe be substituted in place of wood, as it would prove economy in the end. Building wooden sewers or onverts where crock pipe would answer is only expending money often than it should be.

REPORT OF THE CITY ENGINEER.

The outlet to the Hanna and Clay street sewer at Maumee river is in bad condition. Nearly all the water coming down the sewer passes under the chute, thereby washing away the dirt and undermining the chute and separating it from the mouth of the sewer. In my opinion the best material to improve the washout would be large boulders and brush.

First section referred to the committee on sewers.

Second section referred to the city civil engineer.

A good many Indiana people, under the thirty-two-dollar-and-twenty-cent rate to California, are traveling to the Pacific on the theory that it is cheaper to go than to stay. The rate from Los Angeles to Kansas City is down to $4; to New York, $20.

Ten to Twenty Years of Success.

For a remedy that has in that time never been wanting in all that is claimed for it, certainly ought to give confidence to those who have not tried Simmons' Liver Regulator. The trial is attended with no inconvenience, no danger, no doubt; if it will not cure you it can possibly do you no harm, and in no case of bilious headache, constipation, liver disease or its attendant evils has it ever been known to fail. Beware of bogus and counterfeit "Simmons" gotten up to sell on the reputation of the genuine.

The executive committee of the G. A. R. met at Indianapolis last night at the office of the adjutant general, for the purpose of making arrangements for the state encampment. It is expected that the encampment will be held in that city during the week of the 4th of July.

It Should Be Generally Known.

That the multitude of diseases of a scrofulous nature generally proceed from a torpid condition of the liver. The blood becomes impure because the liver does not act properly and work off the poison from the system, and the certain results are blotches, pimples, eruptions, swellings, tumors, ulcers, and kindred affections or settling upon the lungs and poisoning their delicate tissues until ulceration, breaking down, and consumption is established. Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" will, by acting upon the liver and purifying the blood, cure all these diseases.

We are enabled to sell so low simply in consequence of our immense trade. At times we sell two and three chests daily, and buying direct of the importers and selling direct to the consumer, enables us to save our customers the profits of the jobber, speculator and wholesale merchant which is at least 10 to 20 per pound.

LENTEN INAUGURAL.

How the Season Was Ushered in by the Churches—Catholic Rules of Abstinence.

In the Catholic, Episcopal and Lutheran churches Lent is a solemn era and the services yesterday were impressive of the holy season. Rev. W. N. Webbe held appropriate services at Trinity church. At the Cathedral masses were celebrated and in the evening Rt. Rev. Bishop Dwenger delivered a masterly sermon, the first of a series.

CATHOLIC LENTEN RULES.

The following regulations apply in the diocese of Fort Wayne during lent:

1. All the faithful who have completed their twenty-first year, are, unless legitimately dispensed, bound to observe the fast of Lent.

2. They are only to make one meal a day, excepting Sunday.

3. The meal allowed on fast days is not to be taken till about noon.

4. At that meal, if on any day permission should be granted for eating flesh, both fish and flesh shall not be used at the same time.

5. A small refreshment, commonly called collation, is allowed in the evening; no general rule as to the quantity of food permitted at this time is or can be made. But the practice of the most regular Christians is never to let it exceed the fourth part of an ordinary meal.

6. The quantity of food allowed at a collation is, in this diocese, bread, butter, eggs, cheese, milk, all kinds of fruits, salads, vegetables and cold fish.

7. General usage has made it lawful to take in the morning some warm liquid; as tea, coffee, or chocolate, and a cracker.

8. Necessity and custom have authorized the use of lard instead of butter in preparing fish, vegetables, etc.

9. The following persons are exempt from the obligations of fasting: Young persons under twenty-one years of age, the sick, nursing women, those who are obliged to do hard labor, all who, through weakness, cannot fast without prejudice to their health.

10. By dispensation, the use of flesh meat will be allowed at any time on Sundays, and once a day on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, with the exception of the second and last Saturday of Lent.

11. Persons dispensed from the obligation of fasting on account of tender or advanced age, sixty, or hard labor, are not bound by the restriction of using meat only at one meal on days on which its use is granted by dispensation. Those dispensed from the fast for other causes, as well as those who are obliged to fast, are permitted to use meat only at one meal.

We recommend that, on Good Friday, the faithful abstain from the use of milk, butter and eggs.

We earnestly beg those who have made themselves the victim of intemperance, to begin with Lent a sober and pious life, and to show a spirit of true repentance by a pledge of total abstinence.

Bishop of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Hard on the Bohemians.

Mr. George Harter, of Ossian, publishes the following letter, which will be read by dealers in Bohemian wares with a good deal of relish:

COLUMBUS, O., March 2, 1886.

GEORGE HARTER: Dear Sir—In answer to yours of Feb. 27. These seed companies are a fraud and a swindle. A bill is pending in our legislature, making their operations a penitentiary offense. You cannot deal with them and be safe. Have nothing to do with them. They are "paper" companies simply, and possess no tangible property. The names of their stockholders are unknown to you. There is not a dollar deposited here as security for their bonds.

Very Resp'y,

He Has a Wife Near Fort Wayne and is in Jail at Lafayette.

Albert Baker, who resides a short distance west of West Point, near Lafayette, was arraigned for preliminary examination there yesterday afternoon, on the charge of bigamy, filed against him by the father of his last wife. Baker moved to that neighborhood about a year ago, and shortly afterward married the daughter of Jacob Moyer, of West Point. A few days ago it was discovered that he had a wife living near Fort Wayne. A constable from Lafayette was sent to arrest him. Moyer presented a revolver at Baker's head and tried to shoot him. He was overcome, however, and Baker was lodged in jail. He then began to develop indications of insanity, and played his part so well that several physicians testified he was really insane. During the trial, yesterday afternoon, however, he saw that conviction was probable, and immediately recovered his sanity and called for an attorney to defend him. He was bound over to appear in the circuit court.

A NEW SCHEME.

An Invention that Beats the Telephone.

An Ohio man by the name of Samuel V. Essick has invented an electrical typewriter which transmits messages long distances, and it was exhibited to a number of capitalists, electricians and newspaper men in New York last Saturday. It is a simple arrangement with a keyboard, which, when a key is touched, brings the right letter down on a sheet of paper which moves along automatically at one side, so that words are printed as by an ordinary typewriter, and the machine at the other end of the wire acts in unison, printing the message in the same way. It does all the work of the operator at the ordinary telegraph instrument. It is intended by the National Printing Telegraph company, which owns the instrument, to put it in use in the manner of the Bell telephone instrument, connections to be made at a central office.

BOB INGERSOLL.

The Gifted Infidel is Momentarily Our Guest.

Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, the renowned infidel, went east via the Wabash road to-day, and dined at the McKinzie house. Colonel Ingersoll came from Indianapolis where yesterday, he effected the transfer of the Toledo, Cincinnati and St. Louis narrow gauge railway to the Quigley syndicate, the purchasers at the recent sale. The deed covered about fifty pages. The consideration was $150,000, of which $85,000 was paid when the sale was made and $65,000 yesterday.

Daniel Christian, the great chicken fancier of Roanoke, was in the city to-day.

Mr. A. C. Trentman, the great wholesale grocer, was at Logansport to-day.

Mr. J. M. Kessler, merchant tailor, 42 German street, Baltimore, Md., states: "I take great pleasure in saying that in a case of neuralgia in my family, I found Salvation Oil effectual and speedy in the cure of the patient."

Everybody seems to appreciate the way the sale is conducted at the Banner Clothing house at 50 cents on the dollar.

GALVESTON, Tex., March 11.—A special to the News from Dallas says United States Marshal Jackman telegraphs to Receiver Brown from Big Springs that traffic is open and freight trains are moving.

GRIEVANCES OF THE KNIGHTS.
St. Louis, March 11.—Martin Irons, chairman of the executive committee of the board of district assembly No. 101, Knights of Labor, has prepared a statement of the grievances and demands of the striking employees of the Gould system, and has sent it to Col. Hoxie, first vice president and general manager of the Missouri Pacific railroad. Mr. Irons denounces the statement made in Col. Hoxie's circular, issued a few days ago, as wholly false. The statement proceeds to say that it is the belief of every Knight of Labor that the Gould system have assuredly inaugurated a systematic method of breaking up their organization, and to check the effect of this action the strike was commenced. He proposes that a conference be arranged between the management of the Gould southwest companies and the district executive board of assembly No. 101, Knights of Labor, and then sets out a number of propositions as to wages, etc., to be agreed to. It also provides that there shall be no discharge of any Knight of Labor without a written statement of the cause of the complaint and a trial before three disinterested parties, one chosen by each side and a third by the two, the accused to remain at work during the investigation.

St. Louis, March 11.—The trades assembly have adopted resolutions recognizing the railroad strike as a struggle for the rights of workmen to organize, that the position taken by the railroad managers is inimical to the rights of workmen and public good and should be denounced.

St. Louis, March 11.—A freight train was quietly made up in this city this morning and started in the direction of Carbondale on the Iron Mountain road with an engine under a full head of steam and passed through that city at express train speed. When the train reached Desoto, Mo., a delegation of Knights of Labor boarded and side tracked the train and "killed" the engine.

An Atchison, Kansas, train went out on the Central branch last evening. Another will go out to-day. No resistance is being made.

POWDERY ON STRIKERS.

Mr. Powdley, grand master workman of the Knights of Labor, in an interview stated a number of facts that every working man should consider. He considered it very unwise to inaugurate so many strikes, "nine out of ten of them from trivial cause." That the workmen should be careful that they do not "sap and undermine their strength by extreme demands." That now that they had the power that comes from organization, "they must use that power wisely and moderately, and be careful not to change position with the employer and refuse to treat with him except at the point of the pistol, or the strike, which is about the same thing."

TRAINS STOPPED.

LITTLE ROCK, March 11.—The foreman of the Iron Mountain railroad company succeeded in sending out one freight train with perishable local freight, south bound. The strikers took possession of the engine, ran it into a side track three miles south and "killed" it. Another engine was found, which took the train out, protected by Sheriff Worthen and a posse. No personal violence was offered.

VAGABOND ADVANCED.

PITTSBURGH, March 11.—The 250 employees of McIntosh, Hemphill & Co., the extensive foundry men, have been surprised by the notice of an advance in wages of from five to fifteen per cent., to take effect April 5th.

THE STUDEBAKER STRIKE.

The trouble at the Studebaker wagon works, at South Bend continues, although there is now some talk of the possibility of a settlement soon.

STRIKE AT TORONTO.

The Toronto Street Railway company locked out three hundred conductors and drivers, causing nearly a total cessation of traffic.

QUEER CHARACTERS

And Frauds Who Infest the Streets of New York.

The Weeper of the Public Stairways—The Witch of the Doorstep That Work on the Public.

(Special Correspondence.)

New York, March 8.—Queer creatures infest New York. Criminals, frauds and non-descripts, of patterns so original and remarkable that they become a study, are to be seen on the highways, as well as in the byways. Like all terrestrial things, they are influenced by the law of progress. They keep up with the times. Their line of activity is hampering the sympathetic and benevolent, and new roles are in demand when the old ones no longer serve. The successful ones are geniuses in their way, and know something about the art of making up, as well as the art of acting. Not infrequently there is historic talent found here on street corners, at basement doors and on stairways, which would make itself renowned if it had a chance beyond the footlights. But an impostor in the drama and an impostor in real life occupy different places in the estimation of the public. A beggar is pleasing and picturesque and pleasing in a picture, but abhorrent on the street. Rags are artistic in art and loathsome in fact.

One of the original frauds of this city is an old woman who cries on the stairs. This is her regular occupation. That it is profitable is evident, else she would give it up. For two years, at least, she has pursued this peculiar industry, and hasn't exhausted her tears yet. Copious but silent weeping is her specialty, and she goes at it with business-like energy and promptitude. Her outfit is a stack of faded and rusty garments, a threadbare hood, worn without intermission the year through, and a big wooden pail. Just what the pail's uses are nobody can say, but it is supposed to be a reservoir for the old woman's tears.

She solicits no assistance, not by words. She stands stock still in one spot two, three and sometimes four hours, weeping industriously every minute of the time. Men and women may come and go, but she stands still and weeps and weeps. One thinks of the inhuman lines in the old, old ballad of "Lord Lovell."

"And the tears came trickling down, down, down,
And the tears came trickling down."

They are real, sure-enough tears, and they must do effective financial work, or they wouldn't flow on forever; yet I never saw any human being give her a penny, and I have passed her on different stairways fifty times or more. I have known of sympathizing persons speaking to her in fact, I have spoken to her myself. She never makes any reply. Fresh tears, and plenty of them, are the only response. I am not equal to interpreting this character. I have never been able to see where the pecuniary results come in; but of course there are results, or the stairway weeper wouldn't exist. The idea she aims to give out is that her griefs are too overwhelming to put into words. She is rooted to the spot with the extravagant weight of her woe.

The people of New York see such sights often, yet still their hearts never quite harden. Their purses open readily. It is easier to drop a small coin into the weeper's wooden pail than to investigate her case; so she weeps on. Next year, perhaps, she will have some other plan for operating on the public's sympathy.

The extremely pale thin man who modestly haunts an occasional pedestrian, usually a woman, and presents a letter, to a physician, whose name and number can't be found, but most infallibly fraud. His pulchritude and emaciation constitute the most valuable part of his stock in trade. He makes himself pale by ingenious artifice, and knows how to keep death off his brow and be happy, and never work. Like the weeper of the public stairways he does nothing in plain words. He looks his requests. He answers questions in unknown languages, and affects ignorance of everything but his own woes.

Without saying anything he leads his victim to believe that he has just been discharged from a hospital, and that the doctor he seeks would befriend him if he could only be found. He looks so pale and weak, and yet seems to be struggling so heroically against his afflictions that the tender hearted usually give him something, anything from a nickel to a half dollar. He is profoundly grateful. His eyes will glisten (this, too, is a trick of the trade with him), but he doesn't gush in words. He makes his benefactor feel that he has saved him from absolute despair. The next day, or the same day, if he gets a chance, he will slip into said benefactor's house, by means of a smart latch key, and lug off every valuable article he can get his hands on.

The pale man's clothes are very much worn, but are brushed like a hard-working clergyman's everyday outfit. His linen is old, but immaculate, and the skin of his face and hands indicate careful and frequent bathing. These details are also mere matters of business. His role is that of the courageous, broken-down gentleman, too proud to beg, but anxious to work, if his strength will permit. Bitter cold days suit him best. He looks thinner, bluer, hungrier, then by way of contrast with the fur-clad men he meets. And women feel so sorry for him. They are his invariable victims. Men are not to his taste. He can't work upon them so effectively. His theatrical gentility and white face melt women's hearts. They give pitiful accounts of him when they get home, and wonder why such worthy souls are so unfairly dealt by.

The pale, meek man, with the tear in his eye, wept upon the sympathies of a woman one day to the extent of a quarter, then followed her home at an unseen distance, slipped into the house and stole her best silk gown. He goes into doctors' offices when their owners are out, sits down to wait for their return, watches his chances and glides out with the clock or some other portable article under his arm. This delicate gentleman's photograph is to be seen in the regals gallery at police headquarters. He knows the island well, but fails to find any attractions in the path of honesty.

Another and more dangerous species of fraud is the wicked old woman who stands in the open door of a respectable looking house and calls anxiously to young women who pass by to come to her. She is generally a vicious looking old creature of a gypsy cast of countenance, dressed like a respectable servant, her head arrayed in a bright bandanna. "Come up here, Miss," she calls out anxiously, as though in sudden distress; "please step up here just a minute; I need help, quick, hurry!"

The natural impulse of the benevolent would be to respond to such a call instantly without stopping to consider the possible consequences. A mandatory call always turns the mind of the one it is addressed to in the direction of obedience. But woe is she who obeys the old woman of the doorway. Several fions may lurk behind that old woman's red-covered head. She secures victims for many purposes. When the young woman gets close to her she whisks her inside the door, and then, after searing her to the verge of death, only lets her out after she has surrendered all the money she has on her person, or she may not let her out at all. She may have unspeakable experience in store for her. This witch of the doorway is a creature to keep away from. On the stage she would be considered an exaggeration. Her hooked nose, small, wicked, black eyes, red lips and bony fingers would make a picture equal to any that ever emanated from the brain of the most sensational novelist. Yet she is a diabolical fact, a vicious, dangerous reality, an adjunct of certain housewren fruits whose interiors know things such as should be unknown to all.

Newsdealers are as a class popularly supposed to know a good thing when they see it, and are ever on the lookout for that which will interest and please the public. In a humble way I have been a newsdealer, having sold papers on railroads. Among newsdealers who have a keen eye to business and to everything that can be of benefit to Mr. G. W. Dove, of Vincennes, Ind., whose place of business is at No. 114 Second street, Mr. Dove was recently afflicted with rheumatism, but quickly cured himself by using Athlophoros. This is what he says about it:

"Athlophoros is a good medicine and it did for me all that I could ask. At the time when I began using it I was sadly afflicted with rheumatism. I was in a helpless state and suffered untold pain, not being able to get out of bed or to be moved without enduring the greatest agony. I had read some time before of the wonderful cures of people effected by Athlophoros, and at the time tried to buy it at the drug stores, but could not find any. As I was determined to try it I sent to the company for some."

"Did it act quickly upon you?"
"I felt the effects almost immediately. After I had taken a few doses the pain subsided. The medicine seemed to go directly where the pain was."

"Have you had any return of the pain?"
"I have not suffered any to speak of since. I used only three bottles and consider it the best medicine for rheumatism that I know of. I recommended it to a gentleman in St. Louis who had his mother use some and was very much pleased with the result. I have recommended it to different persons, and in every instance where it was used it gave entire satisfaction."

J. A. Wilson, the well-known photographer, 6 and 8 Main St., New Albany, tells an equally interesting story of how Athlophoros cured him of rheumatism:

"I only used one bottle," he says. "The rheumatism was in my arms and I had sharp, shooting pains. I was suffering and complaining a great deal, when a friend coming into my gallery one morning asked me what the trouble was. I said it was rheumatism. Said my friend: 'I was reading of a medicine that is for the cure of rheumatism and neuralgia. It struck me forcibly, as it did not claim to cure every complaint that flesh is heir to.' When I asked him what it was he said the name was Athlophoros. I bought a bottle on the strength of what he said. That was all I needed. I used the one bottle over six months ago and have not had a pain or an ache from rheumatism since."

From Greenacres, Ind., D. L. Southard has this to say of what Athlophoros did for him:

"When Bishop Bowman brought me a bottle of Athlophoros I was suffering greatly from rheumatism and could scarcely move. I began taking the medicine on Thursday morning. At 9 P. M. I went to sleep and slept until 6 o'clock Friday morning, when I got up and said to my wife: 'Dear, look here, I am well.' At the first I was much better than I stopped using the medicine and the rheumatism came back. The second attack was not stopped so easily, but still in double the time the Athlophoros removed the pain. The medicine had no unpleasant effect, but seemed to quiet, soothe and give relief."

If you cannot get Athlophoros of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed. Athlophoros Co., 112 West Street, New York.

OFFICIAL PAPER COUNTY AND CITY.

THURSDAY, MARCH 11, 1888.

When old "Dad" Freeman was buried in Windsor, Canada, a few days ago, it was believed that the oldest man in the world had been laid to rest. "Dad" was 122 years old, as conclusively proved before his death, and left 138 descendants. Since Freeman was buried some relic-hunters have brought forward a man whose authentic record fixes his age at the remarkable figure of 127 years.

It has recently been discovered that Lake Dias, near DeLeon Springs, Volusia County, Florida, is fed by an enormous spring, which boils up about 200 yards off the south shore of the lake. When the surface is perfectly still the boiling can be seen over an area of about five acres. It is proposed to anchor a buoy over the center of the spring, since the best of cool water can be obtained there at any time.

A GENTLEMAN who knew Col. Thomas A. Scott intimately tells the Philadelphia Evening News "that one of Mr. Scott's distinguished traits was his ability to pick up promising young men and develop them into able lieutenants. In this way he picked up Frank Thompson, who is now first Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and Charles E. Pugh, its General Manager. Thompson was a gentleman's son who was in the company's shops at Altoona learning to be a machinist and a railroader. He has made a fine one. Mr. Pugh was a conductor on the road."

The annual meeting of the Royal Zoological Society in Dublin disclosed some interesting facts. The cash receipts from visitors were about $6,000. Twelve lion cubs had been reared and six sold for £500 in cash and the same value for other animals. The sale of lion cubs since the opening of the garden has amounted to about $14,000. The President, Dr. Haughton, claimed that the garden stood first in the world as a lion-breeding establishment. Among the dogs is a Tibetan mastiff whose peculiarities and habits identify the breed with the griffins described by early Greek visitors to the East.

A SPEAKER at the Woman Suffrage Convention in Washington declared that she had often wished she were a man, but only for the reason that she could then vote. The female suffragists' idea of the privileges and blessings enjoyed by the masculine portion of humanity differs somewhat from that held by their weaker-minded sisters. One of the latter was lately heard to express a wish that she had been born a man so that she might have had pockets in her clothes. The probabilities are that the average man does not regard either the ballot or the pocket as the greatest advantage in life.

Mrs. THORMAN always accompanies her distinguished husband when traveling. They are in Washington now. The ex-Senator, says a dispatch, "has but little left of the elasticity of step that he possessed when he was in the Senate. He stoops somewhat more, too, and, while his steps seem a little shorter than of old, the little nod of his head at each step is more marked. His rather unkempt hair and billy-goat beard are no grayer than when he looked last upon the Senate chamber. He still carries his red handkerchief, and in its use he is still capable of producing music which makes up in energy all it may lack in harmony."

HITHERTO Japanese ladies have not countenanced tight lacing, as well-rounded figures were in Japan more admired than sylph-like waists. But it is said that a change is coming; that Japanese ladies will now follow their civilized sisters, and the craze for Parisian toilets and hour-glass figures, like those of European females, has not in. The husbands are said not to like it, but to be over more helpless than husbands generally are under the circumstances. For the rage for Japanese clothing in Paris is as great as the craze for Prussian costumes in Japan, and so the wily Jap ladies are bartering their native gowns for those of foreign lands.

STAGING IN THE FOOT HILLS.

The name of Deadwood, a city that is still in the "wild West" in spite of the rapid improvements thirty years have seen west of the Mississippi, is familiar to many people who know nothing whatever of it except that it lies somewhere out in the mining region.

Traveling from the East, it can be reached within one hundred miles by rail; the remainder of the distance must be taken by stage. The railroad ends at Buffalo Gap. Six horses, carrying a stage coach with three seats in it, await the Deadwood traveler. If there are more than six passengers and any of them are inclined to obesity, there is apt to be a lack of comfort.

If it is during the spring or autumn rains, there is much jolting and careful driving, and perhaps some seasickness among the passengers.

In the bitter winter weather, warm wraps, furs, and heated soapstones are necessary. Perhaps the ride is most delightful in the autumn, when there is a golden rain, and lazy winds and a cloud of purple haze in the west.

The one hundred miles are traveled in thirty-six hours or thereabout. Every ten miles the horses are changed, and every twenty miles the drivers change.

The stations are simply large barns where the horses are kept. These are as well trained, and enter into their task with as much spirit and seeming delight as the horses of the fire departments in cities. They grow to be familiar with every step of the journey and know their driver as children know a parent. The coach stops for meals at regular stations, three times a day. Quite an excited interest is visible at the towns passed through. The coming of the stage, with its galloping horses, its air of mystery and restlessness and the charm of knowing it has come from the outside world, which, like Rastell's in his valley, every one envies to be in occasionally, is quite an event in the lives of the village people.

Clear, in his commentaries, speaks of the inhabitants of inner Gaul gathering around the merchants when they came to trade, and asking questions innumerable. The merchants were often tempted to exaggerate and sometimes to invent stories of the outside world, which temptation they often yielded to, and were eagerly believed by the Gauls. So the stage coach driver, after answering many questions to suit himself, amid the admiring gaze of the populace, with a flourish of his whip, a word to his horses, is gone. Gone for a wild ride over dangerous roads, now winding along a mountain path, now between rocks, now along a river bank, and again out into the level mesa-like stretch, that seems to reach in infinite distances on every hand. The drivers find their work to possess a strange fascination. No stage driver ever feels content to go back to the tame life of a town dweller. Each one of them has his reputation and is known by his peculiar characteristics all along the entire route. In the lower part of the stage, under the seats, is a place for baggage, much like the hold in a ship. The trip is winter taking, especially in spring or autumn, when the driver is glad to give a share of his seat for at least a few hours each day or night.

Deadwood is a very pretty town hemmed in by mountains. It is in the extreme western part of Dakota, not far from its boundary line. It is only 250 miles from Yellowstone Park, and is surrounded by mountains on every hand. Some valuable gold and silver mines are located near the town.—Des Moines Free Press.

ABOUT SOROSIS.

The Famous Woman's Club Elects a New President.

[Special Correspondence.]
NEW YORK, March 8.—Sorosism had an election last week, and a warm time they had of it. Sorosism, as everybody knows, is the oldest woman's club in the country. Its object is culture, and to give the intellectual women of the city an opportunity to become acquainted with each other. It is generally believed that women are able to organize; that they disintegrate everything they take hold of. Sorosism, however, refutes that. It has held together and prospered through seventeen years.

Mrs. Croly (Jenny June) has been its president for the last ten years. There is an end to everything, even to filling an office in which you have done your duty, and more than your duty, without money and without price. A faction, at first no larger than a woman's hand, arose. Then it became formidable, and Jenny June was voted down. The lady who takes her place is Mrs. M. Louise Thomas, a most worthy person, and not to blame for the turn affairs have taken. Her friends did the work, and they did it effectively. They caucused, elected, and then stamped around quite like men in their quest to elect their chosen candidate. Mrs. Croly's friends labored quite as zealously, but did not understand the arts of war as well as their enemies.

There is a feeling, and some little fuss, among the Sorosian fraternity just now, for how can such things be and stir up no bitterness. It all hangs on a question of equal suffrage, too, which is a straw showing the direction the wind is taking, certainly. Originally woman suffrage was a terrible dragon to Sorosism. It dared not be mentioned, to say nothing of being discussed. Certain members, who wanted to be both fashionable and intellectual, looked upon woman suffrage as a fearful thing, the very sound of which would do their infirmities mortal enemies. Now that the once-dreaded dragon has become a very respectable pet in intellectual fashionable circles, the number of its advocates in Sorosism has increased, and they want to discuss it. The new president intends to open the way to making it a standard topic. Under Mrs. Croly's ruling it was a forbidden topic. Not that she is narrow on that subject, but she understands the feminine mind. She knows that a number of women—even cultivated women—couldn't exchange views on such an exciting topic without stirring up gall. She wisely ruled it out.

It may be that the club has progressed far enough in toleration and advanced thought to discuss this explosive question without stirring up a small infernal firestorm. I don't know. Mrs. Croly has said that in a really civilized age, when people become as well poised and small intellectually as they should be, all things can be discussed.

Mrs. Thomas, the new president, is the widow of a Unitarian clergyman, and is herself a very successful farmer in Vermont. Y. Mrs. Croly goes out of the office she has filled with honor so long, regretted by a large number of the membership of the famous club. Sorosism is seventeen years old. Perhaps by the time it is twenty-one it may be old enough to vote on bigger questions.

"Your remedy for rheumatism is unparalleled. I had a fall which sprained my ankle and foot, leaving me with rheumatism in both. I used Athlophoros, and am once more sound. Mr. M. Clark, 622 Sixth street, Des Moines, Ia.

I think Ely's Cream Balm is the best remedy for catarrh I ever saw. I never took anything that relieved me so quickly and I have not felt so well for a long time. I need to be troubled with severe headaches two or three times a week, but since using the balm have only had one and that was very light compared with the former ones.—A. J. Alcorn, agent U. P. Ry Co., Eaton, Co.

I find Ely's Cream Balm good for catarrh of long standing.—M. N. Linsley, 1934 West Chestnut St., Louisville.

REV. H. B. ERRELL, of Pavilion, N. Y., says of Gilmore's Aromatic Wine:

"I believe it to be a most desirable remedy to be placed in every family."

WILLIS L. CULVER, of Pavilion, N. Y., says that Gilmore's Magnetic Elixir cured him of long standing throat and lung trouble.

LADIES, Use Gilmore's Aromatic Wines for nervousness and sleeplessness.

DR. A. C. HOARE'S CERTAIN CROUP GRAB.—This is a simple, private and original prescription, was extensively used to an unlimited practice for many years, with perfect success by the late A. C. Hoare, M.D., of New York. Having thoroughly tested and tried this remedy, he had no hesitation in pronouncing it positive, swift and sure to cure Croup in its most aggravated form, and to disengage the system from all morbid influences. It is a powerful and direct effect upon the diseased mucous membrane, render it particularly invulnerable to those living at a distance from a physician.—It is in common necessity to call in professional aid, if the "Certain Croup Grab" is near at hand. While powerful and effective, it contains no opium or any other toxic substance, which have deleterious or injurious effect upon the system. The most delicate infant may take it, as directed, with perfect safety. Price $1.00. For sale by all first-class druggists, wholesale and retail.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Jan. 19-codawly.

John B. Doris' show, which is wintering on the exposition grounds, at Indianapolis, will take the road late in April, and will make its first stand on the Seventh street ball grounds there.

LENTEN INAUGURAL.

How the Season Was Ushered in by the Churches-Catholic Rules of Abstinence.

In the Catholic, Episcopal and Lutheran churches Lent is a solemn era and the services yesterday were impressive of the holy season. Rev. W. N. Webb held appropriate services at Trinity church. At the Cathedral masses were celebrated and in the evening Rt. Rev. Bishop Dwenger delivered a masterly sermon, the first of a series.

CATHOLIC LENTEN RULES.

The following regulations apply in the diocese of Fort Wayne during lent:

1. All the faithful who have completed their twenty-first year, are, unless legitimately dispensed, bound to observe the fast of Lent.

2. They are only to make one meal a day, excepting Sunday.

3. The meal allowed on fast days is not to be taken till about noon.

4. At that meal, if on any day permission should be granted for eating flesh, both fish and flesh shall not be used at the same time.

5. A small refreshment, commonly called collation, is allowed in the evening; no general rule as to the quantity of food permitted at this time is or can be made. But the practice of the most regular Christians is never to let it exceed the fourth part of an ordinary meal.

6. The quantity of food allowed at a collation is, in this diocese, bread, butter, eggs, cheese, milk, all kinds of fruits, salads, vegetables and cold fish.

7. General usage has made it lawful to take in the morning some warm liquid; as tea, coffee, or chocolate, and a cracker. Necessity and custom have authorized the use of lard instead of butter in preparing fish, vegetables, etc.

8. The following persons are exempt from the obligations of fasting: Young persons under twenty-one years of age, the sick, nursing women, those who are obliged to do hard labor, all who, through weakness, cannot fast without prejudice to their health.

9. By dispensation, the use of flesh meat will be allowed at any time on Sundays, and once a day on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, with the exception of the second and last Saturday of Lent.

10. Persons dispensed from the obligation of fasting on account of tender or advanced age, sixty, or hard labor, are not bound by the restriction of using meat only at one meal on days on which its use is granted by dispensation. Those dispensed from the fast for other causes, as well as those who are obliged to fast, are permitted to use meat only at one meal.

We recommend that, on Good Friday, the faithful abstain from the use of milk, butter and eggs.

We earnestly beg those who have made themselves the victim of intemperance, to begin with Lent a sober and pious life, and to show a spirit of true repentance by a pledge of total abstinence.

Bishop of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Hard on the Bohemians.

Mr. George Harter, of Ossian, publishes the following letter, which will be read by dealers in Bohemian wares with a good deal of relish:

COLUMBUS, O., March 2, 1886.

GEORGE HARTER: Dear Sir—In answer to yours of Feb. 27. These seed companies are a fraud and a swindle. A bill is pending in our legislature, making their operations a penitentiary offense. You cannot deal with them and be safe. Have nothing to do with them. They are "paper" companies simply, and possess no tangible property. The names of their stockholders are unknown to you. There is not a dollar deposited here as security for their bonds. Very Resp'y,
W. S. WALKER, Chief Clerk,
Dept. of State.

BIGAMIST BAKER.

He Has a Wife Near Fort Wayne and is in Jail at Lafayette.

Albert Baker, who resides a short distance west of West Point, near Lafayette, was arraigned for preliminary examination there yesterday afternoon, on the charge of bigamy, filed against him by the father of his last wife. Baker moved to that neighborhood about a year ago, and shortly afterward married the daughter of Jacob Moyer, of West Point. A few days ago it was discovered that he had a wife living near Fort Wayne. A constable from Lafayette was sent to arrest him. Moyer presented a revolver at Baker's head and tried to shoot him. He was overcome, however, and Baker was lodged in jail. He then began to develop indications of insanity, and played his part so well that several physicians testified he was really insane. During the trial, yesterday afternoon, however, he saw that conviction was probable, and immediately recovered his sanity and called for an attorney to defend him. He was bound over to appear in the circuit court.

A NEW SCHEME.

An Invention that Beats the Telephone.

An Ohio man by the name of Samuel V. Essick has invented an electrical type writer which transmits messages long distances, and it was exhibited to a number of capitalists, electricians and newspaper men in New York last Saturday. It is a simple arrangement with a keyboard, which, when a key is touched, brings the right letter down on a sheet of paper which moves along automatically at one side, so that words are printed as by an ordinary type writer, and the machine at the other end of the wire acts in unison, printing the message in the same way. It does all the work of the operator at the ordinary telegraph instrument. It is intended by the National Printing Telegraph company, which owns the instrument, to put it in use in the manner of the Bell telephone instrument, connections to be made at a central office.
